Interview with Sgm (P) Stephen Kammerdiener (Paperback)

By Dennis Van Wey

Bibliogov, United States, 2013. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 246 x 189 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Sergeant Major (P) Stephen Kammerdiener deployed from February 2003 until October 2003 in support of Operation Iraqi Freedom as the sergeant major of the 326th Engineer Battalion. That battalion supported the 101st Airborne Division during the initial entry into Baghdad and subsequently into Mosul. In this interview, he identifies two significant challenges as being repair parts for equipment on the operational side and then quality of life improvements for the soldiers. He mentions that their best chain for repair parts consisted of calling back to Fort Campbell and having a deploying soldier bring the repair parts in his rucksack. Kammerdiener discusses his interaction with Reserve soldiers as positive in that they are very technically skilled, but tactically not better Regular Army soldiers. Most were older, and a significant concern was ensuring they did not become heat casualties. Another challenge was getting the Reserve soldiers to understand how long they were going to be deployed. He describes this effort as a significant emotional event. Then Major General David Petraeus reconstruction foresight is identified here, as well as details concerning...
